

Dear Acorns,

As we delve into our topic of the Titanic, I have a special task for you that I believe will spark your creativity and curiosity.

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to embark on a journey of exploration and discovery about the Titanic. Below, I have outlined three exciting options for home learning tasks. Choose one that ignites your imagination and interests you the most:

Option 1: Titanic Time Capsule

Imagine you are a passenger aboard the Titanic. Create a time capsule filled with items that represent your life and the era in which the Titanic sailed. You can include drawings, letters, photographs, or objects that reflect the time period. Write a brief explanation of each item and why you chose to include it in your time capsule.

Option 2: Titanic Storybook

Write and illustrate your own storybook inspired by the Titanic. You could tell the tale of a fictional character's adventure aboard the ship, weaving in elements of history and imagination. Don't forget to include illustrations to accompany your story and bring your characters to life!

Option 3: Titanic Miniature Model

Get creative and build a miniature model of the Titanic using materials you can find at home. You can use cardboard, paper, or any other craft materials you have available. Be sure to include as many details as possible, such as the ship's structure, decks, and lifeboats. You can also add miniature figures to represent passengers and crew members.

Once you have completed your chosen task, please bring it back to school to share with the class. I am looking forward to seeing your incredible creations and hearing about your discoveries!

Remember, the most important thing is to have fun and let your imagination soar. If you have any questions or need help, don't hesitate to ask.

Happy exploring!

Warm regards,

Mrs Souadi
